‘Logic Would Suggest They Be Resettled’: Somali Americans Have the High Distinction of Being the Worst Performing Ethnic Group, And Even Conservatives Wanted to Get Rid of Them, Once

About twenty years ago, the American Conservative, which was actually conservative at the time, had this to say about Somalis moving into Maine. I will quote the salient parts:

> The problem goes back to the Refugee Act of 1980, which amended the Immigration and Nationality Act and changed a traditional American policy of favoring refugees from Communist countries. The act put the United States in line with the United Nations by redefining “refugee” more broadly to include anyone “who is unwilling or unable to return to his country of nationality or habitual residence because of persecution or a well-founded fear of persecution on account of race, religion, nationality, membership in a particular social group, or political opinion.” Potentially half the world falls under the definition. The Refugee Act also provided for both a regular flow and the emergency admission of refugees as well as federal monies for their resettlement.

It goes on to talk about the UN and what a disastrously anti-white group that bunch of commie Jews are:

> In 1999, the United Nations High Commission for Refugees (UNHCR) declared the Somali Bantu "refugees," and the United States agreed to resettle them. The ancestral home of these particular Bantu was Tanzania, but Arab slave traders took them to Somalia during the 18th and 19th centuries. Despite the end of slavery during the 20th century, the transplanted Bantu remained less than equal in Somalia. They were restricted to jobs considered demeaning, excluded from the Somali clan system, and referred to by pejorative names, generally meaning something like "lowly slave."

Then the backlash, followed by Talmudic screams of 'racism':

> With the welfare system, public housing, and, to a rapidly increasing degree, the schools creaking under the strain of the Somalis, some in Lewiston have dared to speak out. Recently, mayor Laurier Raymond, in a public letter, asked the Somali leaders to discourage the migration to Lewiston, saying the city was "maxed out financially, physically and emotionally." He was immediately attacked by the former mayor, Kaileigh Tara, who said she "wanted to cry" when she read Raymond's letter. Somali leaders said he is "an ill-informed leader who is bent toward bigotry." The usual terms xenophobe and racist were bandied about. A protest march of some 200 Somalis and their white sympathizers traveled several blocks from a downtown Methodist church to Lewiston's first mosque, a converted grocery store on Lisbon Street. The U.S. Department of Justice was called upon to conduct an investigation to ensure that the Somalis are not discriminated against. The UN cannot be far behind.

Now, I want you to read this next paragraph VERY SLOWLY, and imagine any conservative commentator today writing or even thinking this out loud, here goes:

> Logic would suggest that these 12,000 black, African Muslims be resettled in their former homeland, the black, African nation of Tanzania, which is more than a third Muslim and borders Kenya, instead of being transported thousands of miles to the United States. But somehow, the UN commissioners and American officials think the good, old U.S.A. is just right for the Somali Bantu—and other Somali refugees as well.

Yeah, logic be doing that shit, huh! But that would go for all non-white groups. Let me explain.

What is astonishing is that Somalis are about the worst group of "people" to have in your country. Their average income is $18,000, which is a little over half the next lowest performing group, Dominican Americans, at $32,000. Somalis are number 98th, which is the lowest possible. Even normal Black Americans and Hispanic Americans are a net lose to the economy. In other words, as monolithic groups, they cost the system more than they put in. White Americans are the only group, outside of perhaps Jews or Asians (who as a tiny minority, operate a diaspora strategy of open borders anyway) who consistently overperform what they take out. The fact that conservatives wanted to get rid of them because they are strain on the system, a point Ann Coulter made about third-world (aka non-white) immigrants, should tell you really that conservatives once cared about the economy. Now, they're just corporate and open borders shills.

In other words, White Americans are the only group that produces more financially than what they take out or use themselves (this could mean welfare, housing, public services, etc). The presence of these people is not only stealing, but it IS literal terrorism: economic terrorism to be precise (though not limited to just that type). But you also have to ask: how could one group be so awful. Well, in addition to being African, their average IQ is 68. To have you understand that significance, the average white IQ is 100 and borderline is anything below 85.
